

Ranch Managers Visit Sandhills Area

Ranchers In Grass Lands
Host To 400

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Valentine—Take 400 professional farm and ranch managers from all sections of the U.S. and place them in one meeting using Nebraska's famed Sandhills as the stage and you can expect a lot of questions about "God's Own Cow Country" or the "Sea of Grass."

Local Sandhills ranchers met this challenge and emerged as favorite hosts during the recent national meeting of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

Management—the one item that farm managers understand best—was the subject they learned most about during their visit.

Once Desert

They were told by the ranchers that the Sandhills which cover some 40,000 square miles was once a veritable desert and that early settlers bypassed the area considering it only fit for prairie dogs and rattlesnakes.

People in any large numbers didn't come into the area until after the passing of the Kinkaid Act in 1904, which allowed homesteading of a section of land. Homesteaders, used to farming, soon learned that the area was not farming country. Those that stayed learned that only by good range management could they be rewarded.

The farm managers at the recent meet were quick to notice the results of many years of conservation and fire control. The region is now covered with grass, with streams and lakes abounding.

Small Ranches

The visitors may have expected nothing but cattle barons in the area. The figures show, however, there are 1,172 owners of cattle and that 537 own less than 100 head. The average in Cherry County is 252½ head of cattle per owner.

Land values have gone up in the Sandhills area the same as in most areas. Farm managers visiting a local ranch were informed that a recent appraisal had valued a ranch at $67.50 per acre. The same land a generation ago would have brought only a fraction of the present value.

An item that is given year around consideration by the rancher is grass. Some 65 different varieties furnish summer pasture and winter hay all aimed at adding pounds on sleek beef cattle, the ranchers explained to their visitors.

"One thing you don't do out here is over crowed those grasses," a Hereford breeder explained. "They'll handle just so many cattle. If you want to make up your mind to this and then purchase the best bulls you can buy and cooperate with your neighboring rancher, you can have a good start on understanding the rules that are required in this Sea of Grass."

Omahan Killed In Viet Nam

Omaha (UPI)—Relatives here said Sunday they had been informed by the Defense Department that 1st Lt. Paul Richard Smith of Omaha was killed Saturday while he was piloting a helicopter in South Viet Nam.

In Washington, the Defense Department confirmed that Smith was killed. They listed his wife as Frances Z. Smith of Omaha.

Dispatches from Saigon, South Viet Nam, said an Army helicopter pilot was shot and killed by a shot fired by a communist guerrilla west of the town of Da Nang, 400 miles north of Saigon.

The officer was piloting a heavily-armed, gas-turbine helicopter escorting two U.S. transport-carrying helicopters on an assault mission.

Smith was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Y. Smith of Omaha. His father is an executive with a metal works firm.

The lieutenant was graduated from Omaha Holy Name High School and the University of Nebraska. His wife, who has been living in Omaha, was waiting for his scheduled return in a few months to this country.

U.S. Range Society Ends Summer Meet

North Platte (AP)—The National Society of Range Management concluded its week-end summer session here by touring two well-known ranches.

The group visited the Rosedale Ranch, owned by Dale Studley, and the Martin Vierson Ranch. Rosedale runs Herefords and has a modern haying operation. Vierson runs Black Angus cattle.

JFK Plays Golf First Time Since Hurting His Back

Hyannis Port, Mass. (UPI)—President Kennedy played golf Sunday for the first time since a back injury suffered more than two years ago forced him to halt this sort of activity.

The Chief Executive played 5 holes at the Hyannis Port club, about a quarter of a mile from his summer home on Squaw Island. The President played alone while his wife, who is expecting a baby next month, walked beside him.

Kennedy had been unable to keep up his golfing, one of his favorite sports, until now because of a back strain that occurred in May, 1961, when he visited Canada.

Race Fight Fatal To 2 In Guiana

Georgetown, British Guiana (AP)—Two men were shot dead early Sunday as the undeclared war continued on British Guiana's racial front even as the industrial sector settled a costly 11-week-old strike.

Britain's Coldstream Guards, flown from Britain recently to try to maintain order, came across a post-midnight pitched battle between Negroes and East Indians. After their warnings went unheeded the guards fired into the mob, killing two East Indians. Two other rioters were seriously wounded.

Authorities had warned earlier in the week they would use extreme force if necessary to combat rioters.

The latest casualties raised the toll in unchecked violence for the past week to 6 dead, more than 250 injured and about 50 arrested.

Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan signed a peace pact last night for racial peace after signing the 10-point strike-ending formula with Guiana union leaders.

"We must reunite and rebuild British Guiana," Jagan said at the ceremony in the Red House, the prime minister's residence.

The strike peace pact was a triumph for Robert Willis, a British trade union executive who arrived 9 days ago to mediate differences between Guiana unions and Jagan.

A key portion of the accord stipulated that future labor legislation would not be introduced without consulting the unions. This was the major issue in the strike that paralyzed the economy.

Rangoon (UPI)—Communist China announced that all 21 passengers and crew members died when their Burmese Dakota airliner crashed into an 11,500-foot ridge in China's Yunnan Province June 10.

Sidney Band Ends Tour In Mexico City

Mexico City (UPI)—The Sidney, Neb. High School band has concluded a 5-day tour of the Mexican capital and begins its journey home.

The 140 band members and their chaperones have been met with enthusiastic response everywhere they performed here. Band Director Sidney Phelps takes his student musicians on a major tour every 3 years.

The boys were questioned by police and admitted thefts from two laundromats, the Wesleyan University gymnasium and stadium, and the University Place swimming pool.

The boys told police they had stolen several bicycles and switched parts on them to make identification by the rightful owners difficult.

The boys were ordered to report to county juvenile officials.

On TV Too

They also performed for a Mexico City television station which made a video tape recording which is to be aired twice.

Friday's agenda included a performance before 1,200 student teachers who gave the Sidney bandsmen a standing ovation and had the stage band and the wind orchestra make 5 curtain calls.

The Sidney band has also toured the University of Mexico, visited a bull ring, stopped at the Mexico Conservatory of Music and toured the home of the Mexican president.

The bandsmen, who are traveling in 4 chartered buses, are to arrive home Wednesday night.

Omaha Teen Dies As Car Overturns

Omaha (AP)—Larry F. Turansky, 16, of Omaha, was killed Sunday night when the car he was driving rolled over on a curve on 102nd St., north of Dodge, about a half mile west of the Omaha city limits.

Trooper W. A. Teachman said the car was southbound on 102nd. Turansky was thrown out and was pronounced dead on arrival at an Omaha hospital.

A passenger in the car, Milton Eide, 15, received bruises. He was treated at an Omaha hospital and released.

The death was Nebraska's 153rd of the year, compared with 166 on July 8 a year ago.

If you are looking for clues to what might happen in Washington regarding farm programs if no new legislation is provided for wheat and the administration makes an all out effort to maintain farm income, you might follow closely a recent explanation made by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman on what the present legislation allows.

One of the courses of action discussed by Freeman was to provide somewhat higher diversion payment rates under the Feed Grains Program and to require feed grain farmers with wheat acreage allotments to stay within the wheat allotments to be eligible to participate in the Feed Grains Program.

This he viewed as an encouragement for a larger diversion of Feed Grain acres that would also substantially reduce wheat acreage.

Total grain stocks would be drawn down even further, and income in the grain sector of the farm economy would be some $200 million above that under the alternative of operating the Feed Grain Program similar to 1963 concurrently with the wheat program under the "no" vote. Even wheat farmers with no feed grain base would be benefited by somewhat higher prices for wheat," said Freeman.

The boys were questioned by police and admitted thefts from two laundromats, the Wesleyan University gymnasium and stadium, and the University Place swimming pool.

The boys told police they had stolen several bicycles and switched parts on them to make identification by the rightful owners difficult.

Preliminary field reports on the pilot Cropland Conversion program approved by Congress in 1962 are showing the program to be highly successful, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The pilot program encourages profitable alternative uses for cropland rather than leaving idle acres. Securing new uses for the land is associated with giving people a chance to stay on the land and in the community, USDA reports.

The plan has been less expensive, the USDA says, because the costs payed are to induce and help finance new uses rather than to replace income from the land.

Interest in pilot areas was shown by 25% more farmers who wanted to become co-operators than financial limitations on the program would allow.

He states that for each pound of national per capita consumption of meat in this country it requires the conversion of 20 to 22 million bushels of feed grains.

Of Suits And Stuff

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Casual conversation is something that often fails to make sense to those not directly involved and sometimes, not even to those involved. Women, for instance, have a great knack for confusing men whose minds are trained to run a straight line. Talking along about an issue involving the next-door neighbor, a woman will suddenly begin talking about the neighbor on the other side but without mentioning the change of people involved.

When the man seems confused that the facts don't seem to be going together very well, she blithely explains that he has the wrong party in mind. Obviously, when the facts change, he should recognize this and be able, further, to match the new facts with the new party involved without having the new party specifically spelled out for him. On the other hand, the logic of the male mind is fine and unerring. Take, for instance, the fellow who walks off to work in the morning wearing the trousers to one suit and the coat to another.

Naturally, he can hardly wait to get home that evening to take the wife to task for such a blunder. As anyone knows, she should have noticed the mistake and called it to his attention. And it was only last week that she let him walk off wearing a blue tie with his green suit. This was her fault from a long way back since she let the green suit in the house in the first place.

Such a thing as a green suit may not look like something that could come between husband and wife, even though it looks like it could do most anything, but smaller things than this have brought people to a boiling point. Eating crackers in bed, taking off shoes in the living room, reading the paper from front to back and a host of small things have been known to be major points of controversy.

So why not a hassle over a green suit? The man cannot back down because the issue is a matter of principle with him. He picked out the suit himself so now he has to live with it. Actually, he has grown to have a rather strong dislike for the suit himself but would never admit it. Not only is the suit a strange color—it looks green to him but is maintained by her to be a sort of blue-gray—but the blasted thing refuses to wear out. Through the years it has gone a little out of style but is has refused to wear thin in one single spot. It hasn't even taken on a shine any place. On the other hand, suits that have been liked have come and gone a couple of times.

In an effort to improve the situation, someone remarked to him that, from a distance, the suit looked quite nice. That is what you call putting your foot in your mouth. It is like the fellow who tells a woman that her hair looks nice . . . today. If the poor bloke had just stopped short of the "today" he would have been in fine shape but being a methodical sort, he had to nail it down to a specific. This, of course, immediately caused her to wonder about the other 364 days in the year. It is sort of like the fellow who intends to show or comment upon how dry the weather has been by noting how dusty things have been in the house lately. To him, this gives the situation an impact and meaning much greater than the mere comment that it has been unusually dry and windy.

Unfortunately, the average housewife does not interpret a comment on dust in the house as a casual reference to the weather. For some strange reason, she is likely to find something personal in the situation. He then proceeds to make matters worse by stating that dust in the house doesn't bother him one bit.

This should make her feel good but it seems to have just the opposite effect. She seems to believe he is saying that he has become accustomed to a dusty house, which he could not do since it generally is not dusty. Of course, there is no way out for him. He can't mind a dusty house nor can he be against a dusty house without taking on the appearance of a dictator.

It is sort of like two people who can't agree on the proper strength for coffee.

This has one advantage, however, in that it serves as an incentive for both to get up and at things in the morning and first in the kitchen to mix the day's brew. All such casual conversation, however, is not disastrous. From some of it comes a good sampling of humor. There was the fellow, for instance, who remarked casually that he was going to walk in the drive-in to cash a check. That's much better, commented a friend, than trying to drive in the walk-in.

At any rate, it seemed humorous at the time. If it seems a little low-grade, just consider what much of the best of the experts would be if they were taken out of context. Give Jack Benny's stuff to Joseph Cotton and it would fall completely flat so we feel inclined to make no apologies, just to cease.

Time To Requalify

Great Britain's Profumo scandal by now has been well ventilated by a free and diligent press. The people there, as well as the rest of us, have been disillusioned by lack of moral probity in high places.

Many of the names in due time will pass from memory and even dramatic scandal can lose its holding power.

But the deeper significance is the loss of confidence in the governing establishment which can lead to the rejection of Great Britain's time honored social relationships. Like all countries Britain is led by an elite minority, in this instance one largely of birth. It is best represented by the Conservative party. It is a deep shock to a nation to discover evidence that its leadership is decadent.

One may well ask, if Britain feels sufficient revulsion against its hereditary lead-

Bank Call Criticized

Currency Comptroller James J. Saxon is displeased with the way the periodic bank calls are handled.

The call, by the way, is a traditional practice involving national banks. They are required to prepare and publish statement of condition within a limited period after a date set by the government. The date is decided in secret by the comptroller of currency, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

It is an added precaution beyond those limitations imposed by the Federal Reserve Board and the bank examiners designed to keep banks from straying off course.

Mr. Saxon complains that the calls have lost their surprise element. He notes that during the past 25 years calls were made on the last business day of June 21 times and on the last business day of December 24 times. The result, he insists, encourages a widespread practice of window dressing—that is the administration of a bank's affairs for a brief time so as to show off the bank in an ideal light.

This is a reform which can be pressed or abandoned without seriously affecting the American way of life. The old adage that the security of the state is in the vigilance of its people contrasts with the lack of insensitivity with which the public seeks out and cons the bank statements. The public has grown to have great confidence in its banks, much of which is due to the professional improvement of banking itself, aided by such salutary functions as deposit insurance, federal reserve activity and competent scrutiny by bank examiners.

For The Cause Of Law

A touchy subject has been decided in one instance by the Nebraska Supreme Court in favor of law-enforcement officers. The court has ruled that an officer was justified in firing at an individual who fled from a stopped car. Justification was based on the individual's presence at midnight in an area where a number of break-ins had occurred.

This decision does not settle all such cases that will ever arise but it should encourage law-enforcement officers to know that the court has backed them up. They have not been backed up in the cases of their failure to obtain search warrants in seizing evidence. The general public does not want a gestapo type police operation but we should be careful not to go too far in the other direction.

If we too severely tie the hands of the law, we will find that it works to the benefit of the criminal. Officers of the law should be under reasonable restraint against the treatment of citizens in an arbitrary manner but an officer also needs flexibility if he is to do his job. Certainly, if we deny him the right to act on suspicion, we have limited him to an extreme.

There is something to be expected from the public in this area. The public is wrong when it gives law enforcement grounds for suspicion without any cause. People who flee the law for no reason, who refuse to cooperate in a routine matter and who in general are belligerent toward the law should expect to be treated with suspicion. What it boils down to is a need for common sense and understanding on the part of both the public and law-enforcement officers.

Dead Hand Stops Kowalski Career

WASHINGTON — The dead hand of one congressman is holding up the confirmation of another congressman's appointment to the Subversive Activities Control Board.

Last winter President Kennedy appointed ex-Congressman Frank Kowalski of Connecticut, No. 1 friend of the enlisted man, to the Subversive Activities Control Board. Kowalski had a great record in Congress, but during the 1959 battle over subversive activities he voted against the creation of a controller over foreign propaganda.

The late Rep. Francis Walter, D-Pa., chairman of the un-American Activities Committee, was pushing for the passage of a bill which would create a controller with the power to stamp anything entering this country as propaganda. Many book publishers, newspaper editors, and universities were opposed. Kowalski voted with them against Congresswoman Walter. Only three congressmen had the courage to oppose the powerful chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee.

Immediately after the vote a fellow Democrat warned

Kowalski: "You have made a terrible mistake. Walter will get his revenge. You had better go and make peace with him. At least, tell him you didn't understand the bill."

"I do understand the bill, but I am not going to vote to have a controller tell me what I can read," replied Kowalski.

"But," remonstrated the friend, "Walter controls all the patronage, including the telephone operators in the Capitol. You won't be able to make a phone call without having it monitored."

Kowalski, however, stuck to his guns. Subsequently, the Walter bill was defeated in the Senate and has never become law. Kowalski was proved right.

But Walter got his revenge. When Kennedy sent Kowalski's name to the Senate for confirmation, the congressman from Pennsylvania wrote a hot letter in protest. He blocked the confirmation while alive and is still blocking it though dead.

It is a rule of evidence that a letter is not admissible as evidence unless the person who writes the letter backs it up in court.

Goldwater Boom Forces GOP Hand

WASHINGTON — The suddenly very real boom for Goldwater for president will do much to enliven a stale and repetitive "debate" over civil rights. Actually, the congressional argument is mainly a tactical struggle, and all the participants know it.

But President Kennedy, willy-nilly, must lead for the Negroes and those who support their claims to social justice while the open candidacy of Sen. Barry Goldwater lends spice to the Republican effort to find the party's soul on the issue.

For one thing the argument will surely do is to define at least in Negro eyes the stands of the major parties for 1964.

The President's travels, as forecast, did little to resolve the essential contradictions in his foreign policy. He demanded Western unity at every stop while preparing at the same time to find some kind of settlement with Russia on nuclear weapons testing. So far the twain have not met, but he appears determined they shall.

In domestic political terms, the journey was a successful fence-mender. Because Americans of German descent do not constitute bloc voters in the big-city sense and have produced few outstanding American political leaders, it is sometimes forgotten that there are a great many of them.

Berlin is a symbol not alone for them but for other captive countries behind the Iron Curtain. The President's mainly reaction to the wall, the time he spent explaining himself in other parts of Germany, will not be lost on the German-Americans of Yorkville, the Midwest and industrial areas who became angry with Franklin Roosevelt and helped materially—Wisconsin is one example—to elect Harry Truman in 1948.

JOHN DALTON

Profiles In Science

There are many atom theories. Rather, there are many "atomistic" theories and an "atomic theory."

The atomistic theories were the speculations of ancient Greeks, Empedocles and Democritus among them, and the Roman philosopher and poet, Lucretius. They and others theorized that all matter is made up of minute particles, but they had little or no idea of the chemistry and physics involved in the cohesion of these particles into various kinds of materials.

The atomic theory as we know it today was first proposed by John Dalton, an English chemist and physicist born in 1766.

Dalton was the son of a poor weaver and had little formal schooling. Despite his hit-or-miss education, he became first a schoolmaster and later a university professor of mathematics.

His interests were extremely diverse. There was almost nothing with which he was not concerned, and he was free with his opinions. Among the enormous variety was climatology and the study of weather, and he compiled the most complete weather records known until his time, a record of weather information of more than 200,000 separate observations. His first published work was "Meteorological Observations and Essays," printed in 1793.

Dalton's most important work, the study of atoms, grew out of his experiments with gas. He was especially interested in the way gases are absorbed by liquids.

Noting that some gases are more easily and quickly absorbed by water than others, he ventured to advance the explanation that this was due to the "weight and number of the ultimate particles" that made up the different gases.

This led to speculation of why chemical combinations occur, and he decided it was due to the coming-together of atoms of different but in some way complimentary weights.

Although he is called the originator of the atomic theory, his experiments were not the carefully-controlled ones scientists insist upon today. His findings were rudimentary compared with what is known today. Some of his deductions have been shown to be mistaken.

Nevertheless, Dalton was the first modern atomic scientist and from his work, and that of contemporaries and successors—as well as in part from the speculations of the atomistic theories of the ancients—are descended modern atomic chemistry and nuclear physics.

Tito Plays Both Sides Against Middle

NEW YORK—A Communist dictator frequently in our hair on this side of the Atlantic Ocean is Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. Like Egypt's Nasser, he plays both sides of the street by declaring himself an absolute "neutral" in the cold war but a champion of good relations and trade pacts with both the United States and the Soviet Union.

The Balkan kingpin has just celebrated his 71st birthday, and is described as Hale and hearty despite a couple of heart attacks. The older he gets, the more his domestic problems pile up, the more the man who dared defy Stalin in 1948 seems to be on the go to far-off places like Africa. In addition, he has a stream of important visitors—usually at Brioni, his private island on the Adriatic—and one recent week he really hit the jackpot, making the long air journey with four top notchers. They were, in order of appearance, Gamal Abdel Nasser, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, President U.K. Kekkonen of Finland, and UN Secretary General U Thant.

Tito disclaims any ambition to be the dominating or ruling influence anywhere except in his own rugged country, where he has tried in vain so far to forge into a solid family the fiercely nationalistic Macedonians, Serbs, Croatians and Slovanes. The forecasts from those who should know are that the single structure of Yugoslavia will fall apart when Tito disappears.

In the meantime, the "neutral" communist leader is the target from another direction.

The warlords of Peiping and their Albanian stooge on the Adriatic made Tito the whipping boy in their dispute with Nikita Khrushchev. For the past year, the rift deepened between the communist giants, Tito was branded everything from a traitor to a menace by Mao Tse-tung's noisy propaganda apparatus. He repaid in kind, and demanded in various speeches that communist ideology remain true to itself without compromise. This in itself was a signal to Moscow to stick to its guns in dealing with Peiping.

Tito is a strong believer in personal diplomacy. He attended the UN Assembly in 1960, and had talks with every attending state head from President Kennedy to Khrushchev and Prime Minister Nehru. A consequence of this was an invitation to Moscow to patch up existing differences and to work up increased trade relations. But this visit and the subsequent goodwill pronouncements between Khrushchev and Tito did nothing to reconcile the political split. That part of Soviet-Yugoslav relations has become an up-and-down game, leaving much to speculation and the imagination.

City Recreation Program Can Keep Whole Family Busy

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

There's something for everyone in the City Recreation Department's summer program.

It ranges from organized playgrounds for some 12,000 youngsters to housewife volleyball to ice skating.

Backbone of the program are the 26 summer playgrounds with both morning and evening sessions except for 7 with evening hours only.

Seventy playground supervisors direct varied programs ranging from sports to crafts to "just fun" activities. The playgrounds also provide a city-wide softball league and an annual swimming meet.

300,000 Swimmers Expected

The department also supervises the 5 municipal swimming pools which anticipate nearly 300,000 paid admissions during the season.

Additionally, the pools will be used for swimming lessons and activities for some 5,000 youngsters registered for these programs.

The summer ice skating program at Pershing Municipal Auditorium, sponsored by the recreation department, has daily sessions scheduled July 11 through 21 and 25 through 31.

The summer soft-ball league has 1,000 participants and attracts some 2,000 spectators weekly.

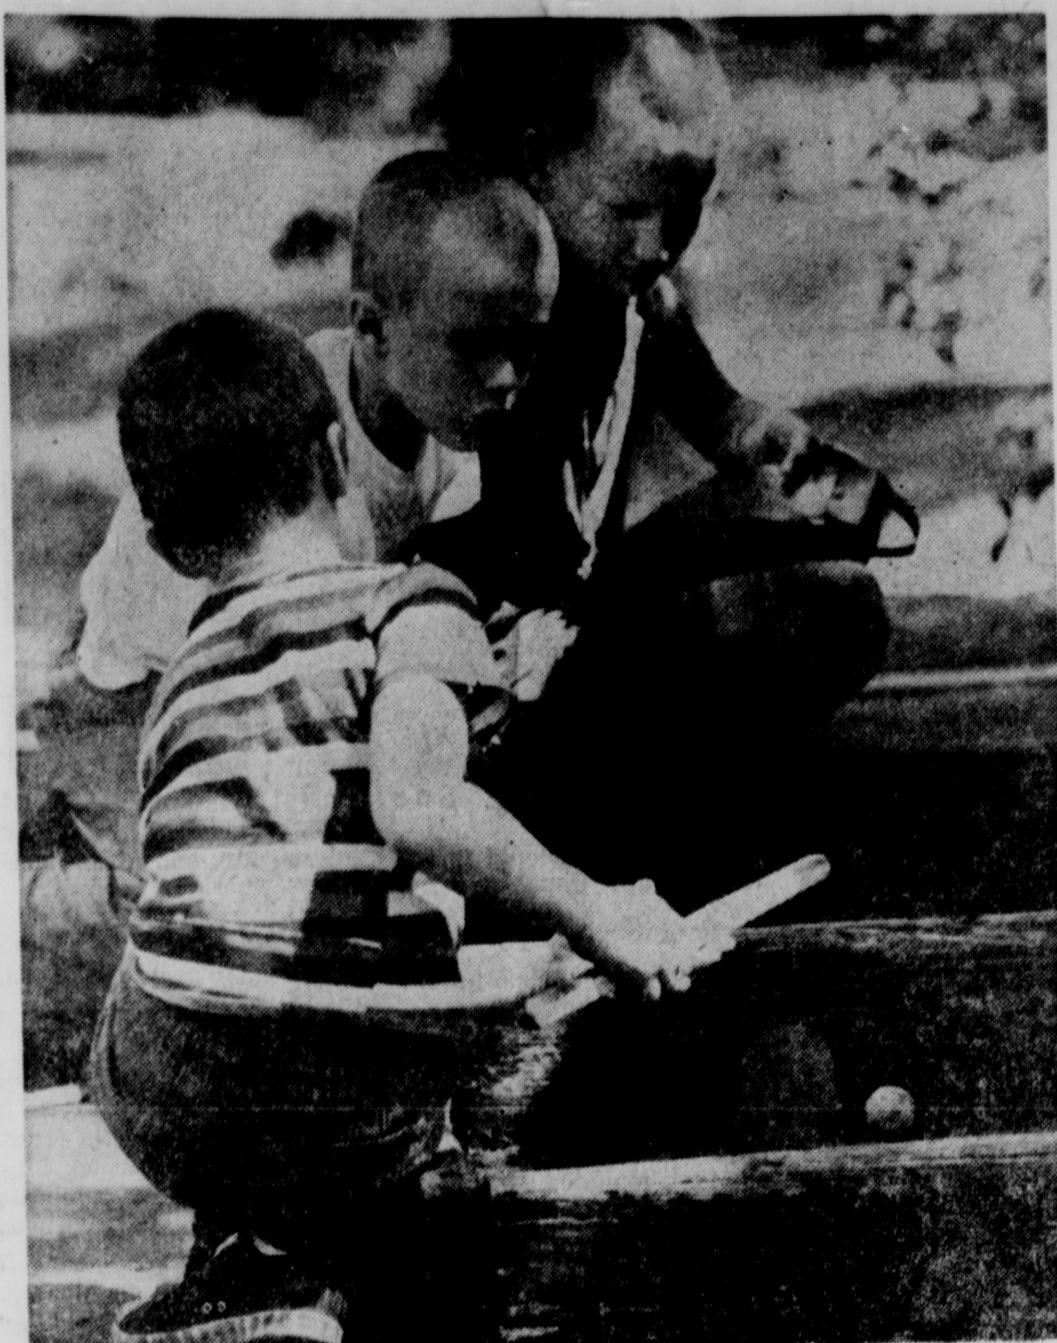

900 Good Time Clubbers

Other summer activities, which also continue through the year, are the 6 Good Time Clubs for the city's senior citizens. There are 900 registered members meeting weekly.

For the teenager's social life, the Keen Time Club with 5,000 registered members, holds Tuesday evening dances at Auld Pavilion while the Nine-Hi Club for ninth graders has its dances on Friday.

There is a volleyball league for mothers. A new activity this year is golf and tennis lessons for women.

And if a family just confines its summer recreation to picnics, the department can help there, too. Picnic kits with horse shoes, softball equipment and volleyball sets are available on loan to families or other groups.

Congressional Session May Last Throughout The Year

Washington (UPI) — House Democratic leader Carl Albert Sunday confirmed what rank-and-file lawmakers had begun to suspect: Congress will probably stay in session the rest of the year.

The Oklahoman said an "impressive array" of legislation—including a new civil rights bill and a tax cut—is in the congressional mill, and that except for a possible short recess in December he expects members to remain here to get it enacted.

Albert thus raised the possibility of a 12-month session that could carry the first term of the 88th Congress directly into the second without a real break. The last such year-round session was in 1950.

His comments on a televised interview with Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., came as the first official confirmation of what previously had been only a matter of speculation among members, although it has become increasingly obvious that the session would run late into the fall.

If you were a real Spencer, you just naturally did your growing up on Spencer's Mountain.

Dear Abby

She Needs A Ride-- To A Good Doctor

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've heard that some women behave rather peculiarly when they reach the age of 48 or 50, but I think my sister-in-law is abusing the privilege. She wears muu muu's on the street with large colored kerchiefs tied around her head like a fortune teller. She loads on the make-up and junk jewelry and she's off in anklets and high-heeled shoes. She thinks she's gorgeous. She spent $12 last week just riding the buses so she could talk to the drivers. Meanwhile, she eats tranquilizers like popcorn. I'm worried.

OHIO

DEAR OHIO: Your sister-in-law is obviously in need of professional help, which is your brother's problem. Don't wait until the police give the poor woman a free ride home before you urge your husband to get her to a doctor.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and have been married for five months. My husband and I both work. We leave together in the morning and drive home together. When Joe gets home he lies down on the couch and reads the whole newspaper while I prepare supper. After supper he goes back on the couch and watches television while I clean up the kitchen. When that's done, I'm so tired I go into the bedroom, fall on my face and go to sleep. Then he has the NERVE to

DEAR TIRED: No bride of five months holds down a full-time job in addition to doing her own housework because she wants the exercise. Since you are helping to BUY THE GROCERIES, tell Joe to get off the couch and help you prepare them. That way you'll halve YOUR work and double HIS pleasure.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

This hand was played in the match between France and the United States in 1956. Considering that this was a world championship event, and that at both tables a slam with practically no chance of success was reached, it seems reasonable to conclude that in some hands the experts founder badly also.

When the American pair held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. It is hard to blame South for undertaking the slam after North opened the bidding with a spade on his skimp values and then raised the two heart response to three.

From South's viewpoint, the only trick the opponents were likely to get was the ace they were marked to have by the bidding. South would have been right, of course, if North had had the king of spades instead of the queen, which was not too much to expect, or even if North had had the Q-J of spades. However, North had neither holding and South had to go down one.

When the hand was played at the second table, with a French pair now holding the North-South cards, the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl.

The North player at this table also found an opening bid irresistible, and he furthermore jumped to four hearts over two. Apparently his conscience was not at all troubled by the light opening bid he had made, even though, in high cards, he had only one ace and one king. The American East pulled himself together and doubled, thus commanding a spade lead, which he got, and South went down one.

The United States gained 50 points on the deal, which was practically a Mexican standoff, but neither team did anything worth writing home about.

Christening Is Celebrated

The marriage of Miss Judith Mary Holden, daughter of Mrs. Richard F. Holden and the late Mr. Holden, to Lt. Bernard Nels Johnson, son of Mrs. Chris E. Johnson of Salem, Ore., and the late Mr. Johnson, took place on Saturday morning, July 6, at St. Mary's Cathedral. The ceremony was solemnized at 10 o'clock by Msgr. John J. Flynn, and Miss Catherine Gillespie, organist, played the wedding music.

Weaving frocks of silk chiffon in the pastel orchid tone fashioned with decollete bodices veiled by shoulder stoles of the chiffon were Miss Carol Ann Holden, as the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Mary J. Tack, and Mrs. Ercole Leonuzzi. They carried nose-gays of asters in shades of violet and orchid.

Why Grow Old?

Pamper Your Feet

Josephine Lowman

When summer arrives your feet become almost as important to your appearance as they are to your locomotion. Your feet are on stage at the pool or beach and even in sheer stockings if you wear this year's fashionable open sandals.

It takes a lot more than painted toenails to create a good-looking foot. This is especially true today because our toes have been squeezed together, over or under each other, and curled up in a sort of hammer-toe position by the pointed-toe shoes we have worn. Even if your condition is not this extreme, you probably have a small corn or two and your toes do need regular stretching.

NAACP To March New Militant Road

Chicago (UPI) — The nation's largest civil organization of Negroes Sunday began a march down the "militant" road to equality.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) ended its stormy "year of decision" national convention in Chicago this weekend.

The decision was for "militancy," the term used to describe "direct action," or picketing, mass protests, and sit-ins.

The group had been moderate in the fight for Negro equality. Its battles were fought in the courtrooms and in face-to-face meetings with whites.

But the "moderate" voices at the convention were either booted or went unheard.

Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley, who built the largest public housing system open to minority groups in the city's and possibly the nation's history, was booted and heckled at two NAACP rallies.

The Rev. James H. Jackson, leader of 5 million Negro Baptists, was booted off the speaker's stand at one of the same mass meetings for opposing a scheduled "integration" march in Washington this summer.

The final blow to the "moderate" voices came Friday, when James H. Meredith, who 8 months ago became a hero of his race for integrating the University of Mississippi, was denounced after he called Negro youth leaders "childish" and "ineffectual."

Meredith also opposed the Washington march and said he was against any "mob" action.

South at the convention furnished most of the "militant" voices.

History Turned Up At Peru

Peru—History of 1885 from original sources was revealed to third and fourth grade students enrolled in Peru State College's summer session last week.

The 78-year-old historical records of Peru State College, of Peru and state of Nebraska were from a sealed metal capsule in the cornerstone of Normal Hall on the campus from 1885 until the razing of the structure in 1921.

Today, Hoyt Science Hall and Auditorium occupy that site on Nebraska's oldest college campus.

Pore Eagerly

Under the guidance of elementary teacher Miss Mary Clarke, assistant professor of education, the eager young students pored over the documents and other memorabilia in connection with their study of early Nebraska history.

The cornerstone box rested in a secluded corner of the business office vault until recently discovered by office employees. The box was unsoldered by Lester Russell, assistant professor of industrial arts, thus revealing its 78-year-old contents.

In addition to a handwritten detailed description of Peru and her inhabitants, the box contained:

—A number of educational pamphlets published in the 1880s, Normal School catalogs of the period, a list of employees who contracted Normal Hall, diplomas, newspapers—Auburn Republican and the Lincoln Daily Nebraska State Journal.

—List of Normal School faculty, student roster, list of county superintendents in the state, member list of the state senate and house of representatives, state school laws, Gov. James W. Dawes' Arbor Day proclamation, a 6-color Nebraska map with boundaries and other markings in black and red, and an 1885 silver dollar.

Memories Live

The map revealed many towns and villages now only memories. Plum Creek, now Lexington, is an example of the many cities which have undergone name changes. Another such example is Otoe, which in 1885 was known as Berlin.

1,500 Balinese To Be Resettled In Sumatra

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP) — About 1,500 Balinese, victims of last March's Agung volcanic eruption, have left the Paradise Island for resettlement in South Sumatra, the Antara news agency said Sunday.

About 60,000 Balinese are scheduled to be resettled in under populated regions of Sumatra, Celebes and Borneo within 6 months. The Agung eruption killed more than 1,500 people and left 300,000 others destitute.

Barry Chills Liberal GOP Senators

Washington (UPI) — Liberal Republican senators up for re-election are being increasingly chilled by the prospect that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona might become the party's 1964 presidential nominee.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., put their uneasiness into words Sunday with the observation that Goldwater's nomination might "prove costly" to Sens. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., in their races next year.

Countering this, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said he had had an "overwhelmingly enthusiastic" response from all over the country to his efforts to deliver Nebraska's convention vote to Goldwater.

Tide Running

Curtis said in an interview he thinks there is a Goldwater tide running in the South, the Midwest and the mountain states.

This was in line with the contentions of other Goldwater boosters that the Arizona senator could win the presidency by carrying these areas, while writing off the big states of the East and the Northwest.

In the Midwest, Sen. Roman L. Hruska, Curtis' colleague, holds the only Republican seat at stake. But the terms of incumbent Democrats are ending in North Dakota, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Ohio and Missouri. Oklahoma's Democratic Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, an appointee, also is seeking election.

In the mountain states, Goldwater is concluding his term and the GOP seat held by Sen. Edward L. Mechem of New Mexico is at stake. There are Democratic terms ending in Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and Montana.

Javits said on a taped television radio program he thinks liberal Republicans like Keating and Scott "will have a problem as to how they project their own views on basic questions like civil rights . . . and separating those views from the views of the candidate for president" if Goldwater is nominated.

Suburban Support

Goldwater, who opposes the Kennedy administration's most controversial civil rights proposals, had been presented by his friends as likely to have strong support in suburban areas.

Javits did not go into it, but friends apparently feel GOP Sens. J. Glenn Beall of Maryland and Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, up for re-election next year, would have difficulties in making their views coincide with Goldwater's.

POSTCARD
by Stan Melaplane

At Kilometer 59 on the road north to Burgos, the windshield wipers gave a soft, tired sigh and arrested themselves at an 11 o'clock position.

The rain in Spain fell mainly on my rented Duaphine. It came down by the bucketful, sloshing the high plains that rise like a long rolling sea from hot and airless Madrid.

There was lightning crackling all around. The morning papers report three deaths from lightning bolts. It is apparently dangerous on these long, lonely brown steppes. Nearly all Spanish houses mount a dried and specially blessed palm frond over the doorway. They come from Valencia and are a guard against electrical storms.

Mechanical problems are a plague on the Spanish highway. All along the road there were stalled cars and trucks—most of them with steaming engines on the grade.

The Spanish are excellent mechanics. But parts and service are expensive.

After the Civil War, Spain had no money and little credit. No new cars were coming into the country. Taxicabs in Madrid were 1920 vintage vehicles whose names had long faded.

Now Spain is making its own Seat—a Fiat with a Spanish license. And Pegaso trucks, built in Spain, run the highways.

But the long years of austerity make the Spaniard tend to patch rather than replace ailing parts.

Every once in a while, the wipers would sigh and crawl painfully across and back and then stop again.

Sometimes I got out and tugged at them. They seemed to be frozen in position. They moved only when they wanted to.

At such moments, any mechanical skill leaves me. I put my head out the side window and hoped for a gas station.

This is somewhat hopeless. Gas stations are so rare in Spain that they are marked with a little blue gas pump on the tourist maps.

The rain beat the windshield so hard that it gave the road a wavy look—it gave you a seasick feeling to look through it.

When I put my head out the window, it covered my glasses.

It is bleak country, this part of Old Castile. I passed alongside villages the color of

Soviet People Learn Of 'Hot Line' Hookup

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union maintained secrecy Sunday on its bury-the-hatchet talks with Communist China but, in what appeared to be another open snub to Peking, told the Russian people for the first time that work had begun on a "hot line" communications link with Washington.

The announcement was made by Moscow Radio on Sunday. It was the first disclosure to the Russian people that a 24-hour direct telegraph system between Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and President Kennedy was being set up.

Diplomats viewed the broadcast as another wedge between Moscow and Peking and said a full split between the two communist nations was a foregone conclusion.

Khrushchev left town to visit Kiev in what diplomats considered still another calculated snub to the high-level Chinese delegation here for ideological talks.

Major Move

The hot line was agreed on during nuclear test ban talks in Geneva as a major move to lessen the risk of accidental war between the United States and Russia.

Moscow Radio said technical problems still have to be solved.

"Specialists of both countries will have to solve a number of complicated technical problems before the first direct telegraph conversation between the Kremlin and the White House takes place," the broadcast said.

The Soviet press and radio meanwhile, maintained silence on the Sino-Soviet talks.

Chinese delegates led by Teng Hsiao-Ping, secretary general of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, kept to themselves in the Moscow Lenin Hills residential area.

High Gear

Reliable sources said Soviet and Chinese delegates met for their first formal round of talks Saturday at the headquarters of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee. The talks are expected to swing into high gear Tuesday.

Although Khrushchev's presence in Kiev was interpreted in diplomatic circles here as a snub to the Chinese, it was considered possible he may meet later with the visiting delegation.

The tight wraps around the talks contrasted sharply with the public bitterness which prevailed right up to the chilly reception the Russians gave the Chinese when they arrived here Friday.

Observers said both sides, convinced that each is pursuing the "correct" path to achievement of world communism, gave every appearance of heading for a formal rupture in relations.

Standing Firm

There were new signs Sunday that the Kremlin was standing firm in its declared intention of dealing with the West on the basis of peaceful negotiation and avoidance of a nuclear war.

As Moscow Radio was reporting the hot line communications link, the official Soviet news agency Tass was reporting favorable British press reaction to Khrushchev's proposals for a limited nuclear test ban. Peking has termed such dealing a "sellout."

Dillon acknowledged that the measure will not be the bill recommended by President Kennedy but he expressed belief that the tax relief "will be in the general order of the magnitude suggested by the president."

Kennedy advocated an overall reduction of about $10 billion over a 3 year period.

Dillon said the legislation which will come out of the Ways and Means Committee will be "an overall, balanced and satisfactory bill."

"I believe the House will pass such a bill," he said in a television interview. "In the Senate, consideration may take a little longer but I'm sure that before the Congress adjourns we will have a bill enacted by both houses."

London (UPI) — The Daily Telegraph reported Monday that the United Arab Republic is using poison gas dropped from Soviet-built bombers to attack Royalist villages in Yemen.

A front-page dispatch said that the gas attack took place on the mountain village of Al Kawma in northern Yemen late last month.

"Seven people in the village have already died and 25 are facing a lingering death from the effects of the gas attack," it said.

Correspondent Richard Beeston said he visited Al Kawma several days after the attack.

"I have seen the blisters and disfigurements of the villagers whose skins have been contaminated by gas," he wrote. "I have heard their pitiful coughings, caused by their damaged lungs, and seen the remains of gas bombs dropped by an Egyptian aircraft on Al Kawma."

Beeston said the remains of the bomb consisted of two circular bands of steel about two feet across into which were screwed 15 canisters about the size of an automobile carburetor.

"It was obviously a complicated piece of machinery, probably beyond the engineering capabilities of the Egyptians," he continued.

"Since the Russian bloc supplies all military equipment for Egypt, it is likely that the bomb was manufactured in Russia or Czechoslovakia."

In an editorial entitled "Poison Gas on Arabia," the newspaper said:

"It is beyond doubt, except to those who may find it politically embarrassing, that President Nasser in the name of republicanism has dropped poison gas on defenseless villages."

The conference will be sponsored by the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers and the NU Teachers College.

Dr. Scott will identify the goals in education and Mrs. Betty Dillon, a sixth-grade teacher in the Grand Island public schools, will discuss how these goals are being achieved in the classroom.

Fred Kuehne, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee of the Omaha public schools, will comment on the responsibility of the parents. The moderator will be Mrs. George E. Robertson.

Glenn E. Holmes of Iowa State University at Ames, Iowa, will present the "action" program of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The bureau's report said a more basic cause was the failure of officials and workers at the mine to follow known safe mining practices.

Ignition of an explosive mixture of air and methane gas by an electric arc or sparks from the machine is believed to have caused the explosion at the compass No. 2 mine, it said. The machine was loading coal and was not in permissible condition at the time of the disaster, the bureau investigators reported.

The explosion followed by less than 5 months one in the Robina Mine at Charmichael, Pa., which claimed 37 lives.

These two major tragedies have aroused the concern of President Kennedy," Secretary of the Interior Stewart I. Udall said in a statement. "The department is now engaged in a special study of mine safety to determine if improvements are needed in legislation and safety research and in extending the powers of the Bureau of Mines to prevent the recurrence of such disasters."

The girl's death raised the Nebraska traffic fatality count for the year to 153, compared with 164 a year ago. It was the third traffic death recorded in the state during the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia's capital, will be the federation capital. New government buildings have been under construction there for some time.

CARRY OUT BODY... Victim is removed from wreckage of bus.

3 Killed As Bus Spins Into Ravine

St. Louis, Mo. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus with 59 persons aboard skidded on rain-slick U.S. 61 early Sunday and spun off a 30-foot embankment, killing 3 passengers and injuring 52.

The dead included Mrs. Jessie F. Matthews, 28, of Repton, Ala., whose 5 children were among the injured; Jack Wesley, 23, of Burdette, Ark.; and Cleophas Johnson, 22, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Greyhound Co. officials had feared that others might be trapped and fatally crushed under the overturned scenic-cruiser, but when it was finally righted more than 5 hours later the death toll was fixed at 3.

Ambulances shuttled 28 injured persons to St. Joseph Hospital in Kirkwood, Mo., where 16 were released after treatment and 12 admitted.

The Driver, Elliott John Smith, 34, of East St. Louis Ill., who suffered only bruises and shock, said the rear of the bus went into a skid and sloughed into a large highway sign, which sent it spinning off the embankment. It slid backwards into a mud-filled ravine and overturned onto its side and top, smashing windows and crumpling the bodies.

Many of the injured were among the 15 passengers standing in the aisles of the crowded vehicle. There were 43 passengers seated.

The bus was bound from Memphis, Tenn., to St. Louis, when it reached the highway curve 22 miles south of St. Louis, where the accident occurred.

"This is one of the worst we have ever had," a Greyhound official said.

Cecil Williams, 58, of rural Sikeston, Mo., one of the injured, said he had fallen asleep and didn't awaken until we were tumbling down."

Mrs. Earl Mosher, 45, of Rome, Ill., who was traveling home with her two children from a visit to Humphrey, Ark., said she didn't know how long after the accident the passengers were removed.

"You have to see it to believe it. You'd never think anyone could come out alive.

It just shook us around," Mrs. Mosher said.

James H. Geathers, 24, of Gilmore, Ark., said he was asleep in the middle of the bus when "it sounded like a blow out." Then we rolled down the hill. I was knocked out for a while and all the glass was broken out."

State police brought cutting torches to the scene to free the trapped.

A panel on achieving goals in education will be keynote by Dr. Mary Scott, a consultant to the Department of Elementary School Principals of the National Education Association and a visiting professor at the University of Nebraska Teachers College, at a college conference July 15.

The conference will be sponsored by the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers and the NU Teachers College.

Dr. Scott will identify the goals in education and Mrs. Betty Dillon, a sixth-grade teacher in the Grand Island public schools, will discuss how these goals are being achieved in the classroom.

Accord Near On Union Of Five Asian Nations

London (AP) — A major obstacle to the formation of Malaysia was cleared away Sunday night by an agreement on Singapore's financial contribution to the proposed Southeast Asian federation.

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaya said he hopes to sign an agreement with the British Government Monday on setting the federation in motion Aug. 31. He called Malaysia a bulwark against communism.

Malaysia is to be made up of Malaya, an independent member of the British Commonwealth; Singapore, a self-governing British colony; and the British Borneo territories of Sarawak, North Borneo and possibly Brunei.

Singapore had been resisting the tax revenue terms Malaya had set for Singapore's participation in the federation, but both sides gave ground to reach agreement before Rahman's meeting with the British.

Compromise Reached

The Singapore delegation announced that a compromise had been reached a few hours after Rahman's arrival and news conference.

The prime minister said the federation would "form a defense against communist infiltration and stabilize the economy in this region of Asia."

Brunei, scene of a revolt against the federation in December, has held off its commitment to join but Rahman said the oil-rich sultanate

Garland Girl, 8, Killed In Crash On Rural Road

Garland (UPI) — An 8-year-old rural Garland girl was killed Sunday evening in the collision of two cars two miles east and a mile and a half south of here on a county road.

The victim was identified as Janeen Ann Luebbe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Luebbe, Rt. 1, Garland.

The Safety Patrol said a southbound car driven by Luebbe was in collision at the crest of a hill with a northbound car driven by Douglas Kreiser, 18, Rt. 1, Garland.

The girl's death raised the Nebraska traffic fatality count for the year to 153, compared with 164 a year ago. It was the third traffic death recorded in the state during the Fourth of July holiday weekend.
